

Community College Development

FOUR ROOT SYSTEM

These are the four roots needed to nurture sustained community college ministry. It can start with any root. How is each root developing in your ministry?

ROOT A SUPPORTIVE
AREA

An Area Director is open to planting at a Community College (CC).

At least one person is called to work with the CC.

Area team is supporting the Campus Point Leader (CPL) at least three times a year.

CC chapter is set up for sustainability through mutual partnerships and ownership by the area and AD.

ROOT B
CAMPUS
LEADER

Any person who is open to spending time on campus.

CPL has established weekly personal prayer practices and twice monthly student engagement.

At least one weekly gathering of apprentices to develop their leadership and ownership of God's vision for their campus.

Leadership of the chapter is sustained and distributed across a network of students and volunteers. The network listens to God together and discerns where to go next.

ROOT C
REPLICABLE
STRUCTURES

Regular, committed time to develop the chapter.

One-off tools for quick gatherings, spiritual interest conversations, vision casting, and network engagement.

Four-week cycles of outreach, missional activity, scripture engagement, and prayer.

Students and volunteers train their networks to expand to new corners, engage in evangelism and discipleship, and identify new leaders.

ROOT D
COMMUNITY
PARTNERSHIP

Existing community networks without significant CC ministry.

At least two community partners (churches, faculty, alumni, etc.) recognize the need for a witnessing community on campus and are interested in partnership.

Two volunteers are involved at least monthly through behind the scenes service, prayer, and financial support.

Team of volunteers sustain the chapter through direct student work, prayer, and financial partnership.
